A SIMULATED DISASTER

Dwayne Williams, center, looks up toward the large screen displaying satellite imagery of the fictitious "Hurricane Carlos" during storm drills inside the Emergency Operations Center, 9300 NW 41st St. in Doral, on Wednesday. Sixth-grade students from Shenandoah Middle School were able to experience a hurricane simulation at the center as part of StormZone, a school-based educational program. The program teaches students about severe weather and earthquakes and aims to help them understand the importance of preparation.
